

ABOUT ANDY ROSS

American Rebel, Patriot, Rocker — all titles held by Andy Ross. Ross has built an empire on his electric personality and abilities as a singer/songwriter, entrepreneur, bow hunter, car enthusiast and TV host. Ross' patriotic country/rock sound is displayed on his three albums and various singles featured on radio stations across the country with his song "Playing In Mud" being adopted as the theme song for the GNCC Racing Series on Fox Sports. Ross has played numerous NASCAR speedway events, biker rallies, and festivals like NASCAR's Freedom Festival, Weekend For Our Heroes at Tupelo, Wild & Wonderful Country Fest in West Virginia, Armed Forces Day Festival and many more, but music only marks the beginning of Ross' resume.

Ross' hit TV show, Maximum Archery, invited viewers to join Ross' bow-hunting adventures in pursuit of some of the world's most dangerous game. The show ran for ten years on the Outdoor Channel and The Sportsman Channel. The History Channel also features Ross' 2nd Amendment Muscle Car, built by Danny "The Count" Koker and inspired by Ross' song "Cold Dead Hand" on the channel's hit show Counting Cars. Alongside the titles of performer and TV personality, add "CEO". Andy Ross owns American Rebel - America's Patriotic Brand. The brand features concealed carry items like jackets, backpacks, safes and more.

With a myriad of successes like Ross, there's no question of media attention. Andy Ross has been featured on the cover of Cutting Edge, Archery Trade, The Man Mag, and the American Shooting Journal giving full cover stories showcasing his unique life and Patriotic values. Also, he often gives interviews on Regional and National Radio Programs, including NRA Radio, Rita Cosby Show and the David Webb show on Patriot. If nothing else, Andy Ross is a multi-faceted business man committed to his music, skills and unshakeable values.
